In today's world of science and technology, to be successful, you must study the outcome before it happens. You have to find a unique way of innovation so that the future is not just different.And it's better. From 0 to 1, create unlimited opportunities and values for yourself! In the traditional era, the business model of a successful enterprise is a process from 1 to N, that is, the existing base.At the same time, the previous experience has been replicated to expand its market influence through competition. But in the Internet age, successful enterprises are one from nothing to create a city from 0 to 1.The process of the field.

All the ways to improve product value can be technology. To solve functional requirements is the basic technology, learning the product design with insights and breakthroughs, and checking the rationality of products.The application of the essence, the value of the product and the purchase experience are also technology. Of course, copying is the only way for enterprises to grow, but technological breakthroughs can make the product stand out and make the product There is a qualitative change and a promotion. But not long, no small breakthrough and accumulation, a little progress: no wind swept grass and no marks, and deception and manufacture of pseudo science and technology.In fact, there is no change.
